ABOUT ME

Writer, storyteller, poet (only some days, if I am being honest), a wordsmith and everything in between.

A writer cannot be an excellent writer without being an excellent editor, and an editor cannot be an excellent editor without being an excellent writer. Let that sink in.

I am a content writer with 7+ years of experience. I have worked with independent brands, contractors, organizations, and agencies. As a writer, I have worked on blogs, web content, product descriptions, online news articles, and more. I am a versatile writer, and I can tweak my writing to fit the audience's expectations. I have curated millions of words for brands and audiences in the U.S., UK, Australia, and U.A.E.

When I say versatile, I also mean that I can adapt to any niche! I have worked on SEO and marketing, affiliate marketing, fashion and lifestyle, beauty, entertainment, automobile, architecture, and construction domains among many others.

Since I am a reader, and writing is my passion, I am quick to pick on the nitty-gritty details of any niche and domain. All I need is a little bit of research. Since I read and take the content apart, it helps me embody the same essence when I write.

Apart from being an avid reader and a passionate writer, I am currently brewing a story (historical fiction, of course) at this very moment. I love learning new things and am a quick learner. I work hard and am driven to deliver quality, no matter what I do.

Adaptive, communicative, resilient, industrious, problem-solver, imaginative, focused, smart, creative, and quick learner are words that describe me well. I am pursuing my MBA degree (remote, weekend classes) because why not?! I love upskilling when I am off work.

Job Summary:

I have been a part of various projects. The latest two are, handling blogs for a UK client with many automobile-related brands, including tyre brands, fitters, garages and MOT test vendors.

I have also been a part of different teams, in the organization, to lend hands when blogs and content is required.

The latest project I am working on is for an American educational institute that works with neurodivergent children. I handle social media and blogs for the client.

HomeTop/ TopCut

Mar. 2019 - Dec. 2019

Role: Contributing Technical Writer

Job Summary:

As a technical contributing writer, I worked closely with the engineers for the websites to report on the technical findings of tested products, ensuring accurate and easy-to-understand summaries for a broad audience. These consumer buying guides were researched and provided well-backed information on the technical and mechanical aspects of the products. The website has since been taken down, I still have some of the samples though.

bedtimeshortstories.com

Sep.. 2016 - Feb. 2018

Role: Content Contributor

Job Summary:

I was one of the core members of the website. My role included searching for popular stories for the target audience and writing an original retelling of the story. For the story, I also had to find a non-copyright image. In the case of no relevant NCR image, I used NCR elements and illustrations and then used Canva to create an illustration. For a new vertical, I also critically analyzed classic poems for children and penned down the explanations.
